Circa 1874 by E R Robson. Large building of 3 3-bay sections with different roofs. Left section has pitched tiled roof with hip and tall gablet at right: the other ridges, at right angles, have scrolled shaped gable ends to road, the right with pediment the centre larger and with bell-cupola projecting over half-hexagonal pilaster on stone corbel. Stock brick with red brick and stone dressings, gable ends all red brick. Varying storey heights but unified by main moulded brick cornice below top floor where central window of each section is tall. The left one is under a small shaped gable, breaking eaves, the right under a square hoodmould, the centre under ogee hoodmould with raised brick quasi-palmette decoration in tympanum. A square bay, projecting over left of centre block, is crowned by balustrade at main cornice level. Similar rear elevation to Appleby Street.
