Formerly Macdonald's Music Hall. 1863. Perhaps altered in 1868. A rare example of an early music hall with a small, high stage and 2 tiers of iron-railed galleries on 3 sides, supported on cast iron columns. The front elevation, to Wilks Place, is of yellow brick and stucco, 3 storeys high and 3 windows wide with an addition to the west. The ground storey is rusticated with 3 blocked openings, the middle one having a dated keystone. The 1st floor band is inscribed 'Hoxton Hall' and the central (blind) window opening has a segmental pediment on brackets. 2 pilasters run up through a 2nd storey sill-band to a cornice and incomplete pediment. Glazing altered.
