

Take it Easy

Cycling through Hackney's parks is easy and direct, but fast cycling can startle and scare others.

Help make everyone feel welcome in our parks.

Take it Easy

and follow our parks cycling code of conduct

If there is a designated cycle route in the park, please keep to it.

Pedestrians have priority over cyclists in all parks, so please:

- Be extra careful at bends, entrances and blind spots.
- Slow down, stop, or dismount if necessary.

Use a bell

- Ringing your bell is not an order to pedestrians to get out of your way, it is to warn them that you are cycling near them, as they may be visually impaired and be unaware that you are there.

Give people space

- Slow down when approaching pedestrians and only pass when it is safe.
- Take extra care when passing children, less able people, and animals.

Be patient and courteous

- Say thank you to pedestrians who move to let you pass.
- Being polite will make people more likely to move next time.

Cycle at a sensible speed

- Parks are never suitable for cycling fast as there are many other park users.

All types of people use the park, so be considerate of others and cycle at a sensible speed.
