When was your last mental health check?

4

From Global to Local

The alarming rise in depression, anxiety and stress have resulted in more general awareness about mental illness and health, yet there is still stigma and misunderstanding about many conditions. How can we make sure we are having the right kind of conversations?

TED fellow Sangu Delle explains that 'There's no shame in talking care of your mental health' comedian Bill Bernat gives some insight into 'How to connect with a depressed friend', founder of The Silver Line, Sophie Andrews suggests that 'The best way to help is often just to listen'.

There are many local initiatives providing support with mental health. But it's difficult to know where to start. Joining the conversation are Wanda Canton manager of Peer services at Mind Hackney and Waltham Forest and initiator of performance poetry project 'Spoken Minds'. A representative from Core Arts will explain how they support mental health and wellbeing through creative learning.

Thursday 29th November, 2pm-4pm

The ways we work

Most of us have to work for a living and whether you love it or hate it, the way we work is changing. How can we make work, work better for us?

Psychologist Barry Schwartz suggests that 'The way we think about work is broken' and Dan Ariely asks 'What makes us feel good about our work?' but is this relevant when machines are taking all our jobs anyway? Daniel Susskind explores the '3 myths about the future of work and why they're not true' and Jason Shen says today 'looking for a job - highlight your experience, not your ability.'

Learning from loss

6

From Global to Local

Losing a loved one or being made aware of the end of life is undoubtedly one of the most difficult experiences to go through, but what can be learned from experiences of loss and grief?

Jason B Rosenthal gives a candid account on moving on after the death of his wife in 'The journey through loss and grief', Emily Levine talks with humour about her own terminal illness in 'How I made friends with reality', Amy Green describes how she made 'A video game to cope with grief' and Michelle Knox suggests that you 'Talk about death while you're still alive'.

To give us a local perspective to this difficult yet vital conversation are Geoff Nursery from The Drop In Bereavement Centre and Sister Jean John from The Wayside Community Centre.

Who am I? Identity redefined

What happens when you become a different person either through fate or through choice? Never before has personal identity been so up for discussion.

Philosopher Julian Baggini asks 'Is there a real you?' Sarah Jones takes us on a playful exploration of identity and invention of self in 'A one-woman global village', Janine Shepard looks a force change stating 'A broken body isn't a broken person' and Jackson Bird explains 'How to talk and listen to transgender people'.

Thursday 8th November, 6pm-8pm
A silver lining, aging in the 21st Century

From Global to Local

Are attitudes to ageing keeping up with growing life expectancy? We take a look at what it means to grow older today and how we can make aging more fulfilling.

In his talk Ashton Applewhite states 'Let's end ageism', Paul Tasner explains 'How I became an entrepreneur at 66' and Laura Cartensen argues that 'Older people are happier' and Susan Pinker suggests that 'The Secret to living longer may be our social life'.

Local initiative Hackney Stream has been introducing seniors to technology as well as providing a social hub. Rick Crust joins us to explain how it works. Sarah Douglas and Hector Dyer from Liminal Space will introduce their research-based project about aging 'Unclaimed' in collaboration with the Wellcome Trust.

Thursday 15th November, 2pm-4pm
Attention please! Dealing with distraction

In an age of constant information and infinite distractions what can we do to pay more attention and engage online and 'In Real Life'.

Sociologist Zeynep Tufekci says 'We're building a building a dystopia just to make people click on ads' Jaron Lanier, has a solution to this in his talk 'How we need to remake the internet'. What exactly is attention and how do we reclaim it? Asks Neuroscientist Amishi Jha in 'How to tame your wondering mind' and maybe there's a simple antidote to all of this as Kio Stark explores in 'Why you should talk to strangers'.
